5) The maximum number of students for a section shall be 40.

vi) only one new section shall be sanctioned for each class, at a time by the Government where the need for it is justified.

7) The schools can levy tuition fees from the students as in matriculation schools and it should also be ensured that the fees they are levying are reasonable and are commensurate with the expenditure involved and amenities provided in running the unaided English Medium Section. The fee collections will be utilized by the schools to cover the additional costs of new teachers employed and also other costs of new teachers employed and also other costs of running new sections.
